

Report on Testing of AMwand and Pendant (Amized Fusion Technology devices) by Amega Global

Contact Regulation Thermography (CRT)

March 18th, 2010

General Description:

The AMwand (manufactured by Amega Global) is a device containing AMized Fusion Technology (AFT), a proprietary name referring to the wands emitting a beam of zero point field energy resonance.

Contact Regulation Thermography equipment known as CRT 2000 was used to measure and analyze the temperature of meridian points in a human subject. Temperature differences before and after exposing the volunteer to a mild stress allows this system to compute the regulatory capacity of the body. AFT was subsequently applied and a third set of measurements was taken to see its effect on the capacity of the body to regulate itself.

This tool is well-known in Asia as well as in Europe, especially in Germany, where allopathic medical doctors use it to gather important diagnostic information. In North America, it is better known by alternative health practitioners working with energetic and natural approaches to health.

Subjects and Witnesses Present during the Testing:

The volunteer for this session was Canadian Olympic athlete Kyle Parrott, who is among the top twenty speed skaters in the world. An experienced practitioner operated the equipment, while three people applied the energy. There was also a cameraman in the room filming the session.

Procedure and Results:

The procedure first involved using a direct temperature measurement probe to take two readings consisting of 119 measurements each. A baseline reading was first taken as the volunteer progressively undressed. This was followed by a period of 10 minutes when the subject waited in a cool room while disrobed, to induce an autonomic response to a cold stimulus. Then the 119 temperature measurement points were repeated.

The practitioner found some areas of concern, where the body had not been able to adequately regulate itself to manage the environmental stress exposed to.

Next, the volunteer received the application of AFT with 3 wands for 6 minutes. The areas of application were above his head, around his neck area, and over his abdomen. The subject also wore an Amega Global pendant with AFT around his neck.

Following, a third set of 119 temperature measurement points was repeated.

The practitioner found the regulatory response of the body was greatly increased when exposed to AMized Fusion Technology. The volunteer's body was now able to compensate very adequately for the cold stimulus.

The meridian temperature tables generated by the CRT 2000 equipment can be found attached to this report.

Discussion:

As the comparison between the second and third temperature readings show, the volunteer's meridian points indicate a much improved ability to adapt to a stressor. In only 6 minutes of application of AMized Fusion Technology, the body was able to regulate itself to maintain greater physiological balance (as interpreted by those trained in the CRT 2000 system).

The practitioner presiding over this session provided the following statement:

“Thermography simply means measuring heat. Today we are in a position to use ancient experience with the help of modern technology. Electronic thermo sensors determine temperature patterns on the human skin. Each area of the skin is connected with internal organs via the spinal cord. Therefore, the regulatory pattern of the skin represents the functional state of the corresponding organ. Contact Regulation Thermography provides us with the first signs of functional disturbances, revealing them before they can be clinically proven. Based on CRT measurement, we tested the influence of the Amega device on the organism's response towards healing. We first took measurements for 119 thermo points on the body. Then we applied a cold stimulus and "forced" the organism to take the regulatory measures to keep the system under control, and measured a second time. We finally repeated the same procedure one last time, after using the Amega wand and pendant. The regulation of the body was greatly improved! This phenomenon can only be explained as a positive shift in neurophysiological response allowing the body to be positively influenced towards healing”. IH

These results appear to support Amega Global's explanation that the AMwand and other AMized Fusion Technology products can rapidly energize the human electromagnetic field and body (as well as all other organic matter) to promote health. It is hypothesized that the supply of the frequencies contained in AFT to the organism in this manner induces a state of homeostasis, or balance. This is what triggers the natural self-healing mechanism of each individual to produce the changes necessary for cellular and/or energetic repair and improvement.

There appears to be a strong correlation between this process and the experiential results observed by many during the live demonstrations being organized by the company's independent distributors to show the effects that this technology has on immediate pain relief, increase in strength and flexibility, and the positive changes detected in the taste of food, water, wine, etc.